About the

o2h Kickstarter: North America

Building on the success of our earlier Kickstarter competition, we have now launched the latest edition of o2h Kickstarter in "North America," exclusively tailored for early-stage biotech companies that have secured initial funding, have exciting drug targets, and have the ability to scale, but need expert services to supercharge their chemistry efforts to meet the next scientific and funding milestones.

The award aims to support the next generation of North American biotech companies by providing a cost-effective team of six o2h Discovery chemists, including two senior and four junior chemists. While o2h Discovery offers broader capabilities across chemistry, ADME, and biology, the Kickstarter competition is intentionally structured to remain focused, practical, and accessible for early-stage biotech companies.
